LOT 1567 - 1902 Morgan Dollar

Description

1902 Morgan Dollar. Morgan silver dollars were introduced in 1878 as a result of pressure put on Congress by western silver interests to shore up the price of silver. Prices had declined during the 1860s in the aftermath of the Civil War and the discovery of huge new sources of silver – especially the Comstock Lode in Nevada in 1859. The Coinage Act of 1873 (known to silver supporters as the “Crime of 1873”) ended bimetallism (the use of gold and silver simultaneously as the currency standard) by ending production of the silver dollar and placing the United States on the gold standard. To counteract this, Congress enacted the Bland-Allison Act in 1878 which required the Treasury to purchase specified amounts of silver to be made into dollar coins.
